

Fall Flight of the Monarchs

Each fall, the last generation of Monarch butterflies in Ontario make the long flight down to Mexico where they overwinter. Along that route, they need lots of nectar-rich plants to fuel their flight. Can you help this Monarch fly safely to the New England Aster patch?

