

Butterfly and Moth Antennae

Butterflies and moths are two groups of insects from the order Lepidoptera. It can be tricky to tell them apart, but their antennae can help you. Using the illustrations below as a guide, identify whether the images are picturing a butterfly (B) or a moth (M).

Clubbed Antennae
Butterflies

Feathered Antennae
Moths

Straight Antennae
Moths

